

Artelia strengthens its presence in Asia Pacific with the acquisition of LCI, a leading player in engineering in Australia

Artelia announces the acquisition of 100% of the shares of LCI, a leading Australian building engineering company, wholly owned by its employees.

With a strong foothold in Europe and a solid presence in North America, the independent engineering group Artelia is continuing its dynamic growth in the Asia-Pacific region, where it has historically been present in around ten countries with over 1,200 employees. Established in Australia since 2020, the Group is taking a new step forward and reinforcing, through this operation, its development ambitions on this market.

For LCI, joining Artelia represents a unique opportunity to expand into new activities and markets, benefiting from the Group's multidisciplinary expertise, as well as its presence in over 40 countries across 5 continents.

With a turnover of €1.15 billion in 2024, the Artelia Group now has over 10,000 employees worldwide to support its customers in all their infrastructure, building and industrial facility projects, as well as ecological and digital transformation.

Founded in 2007, LCI has grown into one of Australia's leading building engineering firms, with six offices across Sydney, Melbourne, Brisbane, Canberra, Perth, and Adelaide.

With a team of over 300 employees, LCI delivers comprehensive design and engineering services across a wide range of sectors, spanning healthcare, data centres, commercial buildings and defence. Its portfolio includes landmark projects such as Crown Towers Sydney, Royal Adelaide Hospital, Victorian Comprehensive Cancer Hospital, and Atlassian Sydney Headquarters.

LCI has enjoyed sustained growth in recent years, generating sales of almost 40 million euros in 2024.

On the conclusion of this acquisition, Artelia's Chief Executive Officer Benoît Clocheret declared: "This acquisition is fully in line with Artelia's strategy of expanding at a sustained pace, in order to strengthen its position as a multidisciplinary player on the international scene. By joining forces with LCI, we are strengthening our foothold in Australia, where we have been present for several years. With its strong, dynamic economy, Australia is a buoyant market offering considerable development prospects for the engineering sector. The needs are huge, whether in terms of transport infrastructure, low-carbon energy production, sustainable resource management, sustainable urban development, building energy efficiency or industrial transformation. Driven by our shared values of independence, proximity to our customers and technical excellence, I am deeply convinced that this merger will consolidate our Group's development momentum, bringing new services to an increasingly broad customer base, as well as stimulating career development opportunities for our teams."

Ross Doolan, Managing Director of LCI, comments: "Cultural alignment has been at the heart of our decision to join forces with Artelia Group. As a fellow employee-owned firm, they share our commitment to excellence, innovation, and empowering our people. This merger not only enhances our capabilities and reach but also provides new pathways for professional growth while maintaining the personal, collaborative environment that makes LCI unique".
